DETAILED ACTION

Specification

1. The disclosure is objected to because of the following informalities: the term "Velcro" throughout the specification should be given the proper trademark notification. Otherwise, the term "hook and loop fastening means" should be used. The use of the trademark "Velcro®" has been noted in this application. It should be capitalized wherever it appears and be accompanied by the generic terminology.

Although the use of trademarks is permissible in patent applications, the proprietary nature of the marks should be respected and every effort made to prevent their use in any manner which might adversely affect their validity as trademarks. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

2. Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. Each claim contains the phrase "comprising of flexible wrapping retaining members made a part of a flexible extension..." which renders the claims vague and indefinite. It is not clear whether the retaining members are made as a part of a flexible extension or are made with a part of it being a flexible extension.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Art Unit: 3728

4. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Lavielle 4,514,882. Lavielle '882 discloses all the limitations of the claim including the following: flexible wrapping retaining members as part of a flexible extension 1,2; the members being made of plastics (see col. 2, lines 20-23); the device being semi attached to the upper of a shoe (by shoe lace).

5. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Anderson 4,949,437. Anderson '437 discloses all the limitations of the claim including the following: flexible wrapping retaining members as part of a flexible extension 12, 14; the members being made of plastic (see col. 3, lines 55-65); the device being semi attached to the upper of a shoe (through shoelace, see Figure 1).

6. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Blum 4,553,293. Blum '293 discloses all the limitations of the claim including the following: flexible wrapping retaining members as part of a flexible extension 12, 14; the members being made of rubber (see claim 5); the device being semi attached to the upper of a shoe (through laces).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

7. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

8. Claim 2 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over any one of the references applied to claim 1 above in view of Pitman 722,891. The references as applied to claim 1 above disclose all the limitations of the claim except for the device being permanently attached to the shoe. Pitman '891 teaches that a shoestring fastener can be attached to a shoe by the tongue by being riveted to the tongue to aid in holding the shoestring to the shoe. Therefore, it would have been obvious, to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made, to attach the shoestring holders of the references as applied to claim 1 above, to the shoe by a rivet, as taught by Pitman '891, to prevent loss of the shoestring fastener.

Conclusion

9. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure and are cited on form 892 enclosed herewith.
